News of South Richmond

South Richmond Bureau. The Times-Dispatch, 1100 Hull Street.

According to a statement made yesterday by Magistrate L. W. Cheatham, of Oak Grove, will make a test case over the right of certain Hebrew merchants doing business at Forest Hill Park. Two Sundays ago that popular resort was raided by the Chesterfield county authorities, and the ice-cream man, the soda-water man, the man who rents the swings and the boats on the lake were all haled to court. Each one was fined and warned of the law against laboring at his trade or calling on the Sabbath, and the expectation was that last Sunday would see typical "Blue Law" conditions at the park.

But few people comparatively ventured out for the springs and the shade of the trees were not a sufficient attraction alone, although taken in conjunction with lemonade and "hokky-pokky," they have served to draw large crowds on former Sunday afternoons. A new wrinkle was played Sunday. Several of the concessionaires are of the Jewish faith and had closed their places of business on Saturday until the going down of the sun. These were there bright and early, ready to make the most of the Sunday warmer, or to sell him a slice of pie and milk if he were hungry.

The county officers felt powerless to intervene, and the day passed with inaction. It is believed that a test case will be made to-day, however, as other dealers who can not claim to be of Hebrew descent are complaining of discrimination against them, that they are required to close on the most irritating day of the week. It is believed that by agreement a test case will be made and taken to the Chesterfield Circuit Court to establish the right of Jews who which will hold its first session to-morrow night.

Police Justice Maurice, of Police Court, Part 2, had a holiday yesterday, this order being community preventing no docket of offenders for his consideration.

The condition of Mrs. H. M. Goodwyn, who has for some time been quite ill at her home on Porter Street, remains the same.

OFFICERS VISIT BATTLEFIELDS

Study Is Made of Lee's and Grant's Campaigns in Northern Virginia.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Spotsylvania, Va., May 14.—The War College of twenty-six commissioned officers of the United States Army, permanently stationed at Fort Myer, who, with forty-three colored troopers and officers of Colonel Cook's detachment, have for the past ten days, under the direction of the Secretary of War, been camping upon and making an inspection of the great battlefields of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Salem Church, Wilderness and Spotsylvania, under the command of Colonel Eben Swift, broke camp this morning at the "Bloody Angle" battlefield, on the McCollum farm. The wagon train was ordered to Coleman's Mills, on the Mataponi. The War College officers rode over the battlefield across the Ny River, where General Ewell's Corps, on its flank movement, ordered the enemy near the Poor House during General Grant's retreat, May 13, 1864, and followed up the line of retreat to Massaponax Church and Guinea, where Grant's forces made a stand and engaged General Fitz Lee's cavalry on May 21, 1864.

The purpose of these annual visits and movements is to familiarize the War College officers with the movements of both Generals Lee and Grant, and after each inspection of the fields one of the officers is called upon to criticize the manoeuvres of both armies in the presence of his comrades. These lectures are preserved for future use and reference by those who shall succeed the present War College. They will prove an educational factor in matters of future military service. From these battlefields the War College will visit the whole line of march of both armies, camping on the battlefields of North Anna, Shenton House, Gaines's Mill, Mechanicsville, Savage Station, Seven Pines, Malvern Hill, White Oak and Fredricksburg. The march is expected to conclude on May 26, when the whole force will return to Fort Myer.
